Bellows Studies Fees

By John Scott

Student Body President/Regent Clint Bellows will formally announce the formation of a nine member committee to study student fees on the three university campuses at the Board of Regents meeting Dec. 13.

Bellows was asked by regent chairman Kermit Wagner to organize a committee following the Nov. 7 regent meeting, during which the regents voted unanimously to raise student fees (UPFF) on the UNO campus. At that meeting, Bellows presented a comparison of student fee allocations on the UNL and UNO campuses.

Interviewed by the Gateway Sunday, Bellows said he "was surprised Wagner told me to do it (organize the committee). Say (UNL student regent Jim) was so surprised, he wouldn't believe me — so he called Wagner to confirm it."

According to Bellows' plan, three individuals from each university campus (UNL, UNO, and the Med Center) will serve on the committee. He said one administrator, one student, and one individual from the business or finance office will represent each campus.

Bellows will appoint the members to the committee, but said he will rely on suggestions from the student regents when appointing members from their respective campus.

Bellows explained he will act "as an ex-officio chairman or something like that," but will not serve on the committee. He said

Ravine Plan Alive Despite Council Vote

By C. F. Bisbee

Although the City Council voted 5-2 last Tuesday against the idea of UNO using the Elmwood ravine for parking, Campus Planner Rex Engebretson says the university will still pursue the plan.

"The vote shuts off the possibility of getting the ravine in a cooperative manner with the city," Engebretson told the Gateway in an interview Saturday. "But the vote was merely an expression of attitude on the part of the council, and it does not affect action the Board of Regents has already taken."

University attorney Warren Johnson was directed by the regents at a meeting November 7 to draw up a legal plan for acquisition of the area. Johnson recommended that the university ask the state legislature to condemn the ravine and provide funds to the university for its purchase.

"There's no alternative now other than the condemnation route," Engebretson said. "The university has the power of eminent domain over the ravine."

Engebretson had proposed earlier (Gateway, November 7) that the Unicameral give the city of Omaha adequate funding to develop the ravine, with the city retaining ownership and control. However, the council vote Tuesday has eliminated that plan in Engebretson's view.

Omaha State Senator Glenn Goodrich, a supporter of the ravine parking plan, said Sunday he would "rather see the ravine developed on a cooperative basis with the city. If the university can come up with a legislative bill that includes city control of the ravine, I will sponsor it."

Engebretson defends plan before Council

Goodrich also said, however, that he would "support condemnation of the land as a last alternative."

"We don't want the whole park; it's the furthest thing from our mind. We're using the park now and it shouldn't be bottled up that way. If we had the ravine, we could restrict parking to the ravine and open the park up," Goodrich explained.

Goodrich said the vote "was about what I expected."

In a separate interview UNO Student Body President Clint Bellows agreed with Goodrich, saying, "I knew it (the vote) was coming. I knew the vote would be 5-2 or 4-3 against the ravine."

"Anyone who says there's not a parking problem at UNO is ignoring the problem," Bellows charged. "There's going to be 5,000 more students at UNO by 1980, and we're going to have a messy situation in Elmwood Park. It's too bad 1976 is around the corner."

Bellows said development of the ravine for parking would "raise the ecological value of that lousy sewer" (the ravine). Bellows added that student government "is in favor" of the ravine parking plan and "will lobby in the state legislature for the plan."

Councilwoman Betty Abbott, out of town over the holiday weekend, sponsored the resolution against use of the ravine for UNO parking. "I have nothing against UNO," Abbott said at the meeting, "but I draw the line at Elmwood Park."

Councilman Jerry Hassett proposed a resolution delaying a formal council vote "until the council has had time to talk with university officials." Asking Abbott if she would withdraw or postpone her resolution, she replied, "Not on your life."

John Bozell, a spokesman for Friends of the Park, a neighborhood group opposing university acquisition of the ravine, told the council, "We're not here to solve a parking problem, but to

Thefts On Increase

According to a report recently released by Campus Security officials, thefts at UNO increased during the period of July, 1974, to July, 1975, by 69 per cent over the previous year. Reported thefts totaled 182 with a known value of $21,895.

All major buildings were hit with increased theft rates and dollar values of items taken, except the Administration Building and smaller buildings which are not included in the major building category.

The largest single theft resulted in the loss of $1,310 worth of typewriters from the University Relations office in the Administration Building. This compares with the loss of a $12,000 computer terminal stolen from Annex 14 in 1973-74.

Most thefts occurred in February and April. The Administration Building sustained the largest total known loss with $4,421 worth of items stolen.

The Fieldhouse was the site of most thefts, with 76 being reported. The rate of occurrence rose to more than 600 per cent, though the majority of the thefts were items valued at $50 or less. More than half of the thefts occurred in the men's dressing rooms, and a majority of all the thefts were committed by breaking and entering.

Reported thefts in the Student Center totaled 22. Increasing nearly 20 per cent over the previous year, 45 per cent of the thefts occurred in the lounge area. The largest theft totaled $874 worth of items taken from the Bookstore jewelry counter. Personal property valued at $580 was also taken in another occurrence.

Twenty thefts occurred in the Administration Building, while 13 were reported in the library, its associated offices and the conference center. None of the library thefts involved breaking and entering, a decrease of 55 per cent from 1973-74.

Literature Policies: Unclear?

By Mike Mayhan

Literature which is sold and literature which is given away fall under separate policies at UNO.

Two weeks ago a group called the Young Socialist's Alliance — a group its members call "an organization and not a political party" — encountered these rules.

Peggi Perrone, Larry Lukehart, and Rick Carlson of the Young Socialist's Alliance were selling a publication called The Militant in MBSC's octagon when approached by Officer Ray of UNO's campus security.

The conversation went something like this:

"You can give it away but you can't sell it," said the officer to the socialists."

"Who told you to do this?" one of the socialists asked.

"My superior," was the answer, the officer refusing to specify who that superior was.

"How did this come about? Through a complaint?" asked a socialist.

"It wasn't a complaint," responded the officer, "a student suggested that I go in and check."

According to Rick David, Director of Student Activities, the Young Socialists had been given permission to sell their literature by the Executive Committee of the Student Senate. But he said permission to give material away — which appears under a different set of regulations — had not been granted and therefore may have been the case of the confrontation.

UNO's policy for the distribution of printed matter is somewhat vague, and includes different sets of regulations depending on whether the material is sold or given away.

Free Handouts

"Policy Regarding Distribution of Literature" obtained from Don Pflasterer, assistant to the vice-chancellor for academic affairs, says, "the student center director shall provide a space in a reasonably trafficked area in Milo Bail Student Center for distribution of literature, or other materials . . . so long as such distribution of literature shall not interfere with normal traffic of functions of the University."

Students must register with the Director of Student Activities and with him they must file a copy of every publication so distributed.

Printed Matter For Sale

"Any material offered for sale or solicitation of donations must comply with UNO policy and regulations governing sale or solicitations," adds the report.

Don Pflasterer says he can't find a written policy for the sale of material. Vice Chancellor for Educational and Student Services Dr. Ronald Beer said the policy is understood to mean, "when it (any material) is solicited by a student organization it can't be for personal gain."

According to Beer, questions concerning the Young Socialists right to distribute were dropped; nevertheless Pflasterer said the incident points out the need for a written policy.

Pflasterer, Beer, and David said they would be working on drawing up such a policy.

LETTERS

Dear Editor:

In talking to former students of UNO, it is obvious that the school has had a parking problem for at least ten years, as early as 1965.

But the problem was ignored, but has recently become too obvious to be put off any longer; so the administration greedily grabs at the easiest and cheapest solution, ignoring the fact that it would entail destruction of public park land set aside for use by the citizens of Omaha. Some claim that the ravine is polluted and useless; sure, it may not rival the beauty of the Grand Tetons, but it's a lot prettier than thousands of cars stacked all over the place. And any undeveloped land in the middle of an urban area is certainly not useless.

So all that I ask, Mr. Roskens, is that you consider and select another solution to UNO's parking problem, such as off-campus and shuttlebusing, or a parking garage. How about the land where the Downtowner Motel used to be? There are several acceptable alternatives; don't settle for the easiest solution and then pat yourself on the back for a job well done.

Elmwood Park is one of the prettiest parks in the city; and I, for one, don't wish to see Dodge Street, from Happy Hollow Blvd. to 68th Street, looking like a used-car lot.

Thank you,
Ken Lant

The Honorable Edward Zorinsky

Mayor of the City of Omaha
City-County Building
1819 Farnam Street
Omaha, Nebraska 68102

Dear Mayor Zorinsky:

On Wednesday, November 19th, at 7:30 p.m., I was a witness to an automobile-pedestrian accident at the main entrance off Dodge Street to the Library-Student Center Complex.

It happened that a driver who was turning east on to Dodge from the church lot, struck a UNO student as she was crossing Dodge Street. My immediate disbelief gave way to a personal responsibility to render needed aid. Injuries to the student were not severe fortunately, and all that could be done was to keep her shielded from the cold rain and keep her calm until the rescue squad arrived.

The weather played its part in the mishap but the major fault lies not with the driver or the student since the light was green for both; but, however, with the poor lighting on Dodge Street in the campus area.

Often I have checked my headlights to see if they were on when I was driving down Dodge in the campus area, due to the darker than normal conditions. What exactly is the lighting problem — whether power or frequency of lights — I can only speculate. This, in fact, coupled with the short duration of the crosswalk — cross-traffic green light (which is hardly long enough to get across the street) makes an awfully jeopardous situation.

I have been more or less an apathetic UNO commuter for many years, though today I would like to initiate a resolution for the Dodge Street pedestrian problem before someone is critically hurt. This appeal is made not only for the UNO students, faculty and staff but, in addition, for the young kids who use our crosswalks on their way to and from elementary and junior high schools in our neighborhood. We can all agree (I hope) that there is a problem and possibly we, the student body, can make some input to the Mayor, the Gateway and the City Council.

These are some of my suggestions: First, the speed limit on Dodge in our area. After all, this is a school zone and should have an appropriate speed limit posted. Secondly, the signal lights could have pedestrian "Walk — Do not Walk" lights affixed to them, thus preventing turning cars from sharing precious time and space in the intersection with pedestrians. Thirdly, better lighting in and above the crosswalk areas may be the ultimate answer. There are more ways to eliminate the problem but we must make someone other than ourselves aware of them.

My thoughts are with Wednesday's victim.

Respectfully,
David R. Spry

was the location of 10 thefts, of which seven occurred in classrooms. The thefts represent an increase of 333 per cent over the previous year. The largest single loss was $1,000 of electronic equipment.

The thefts reported in Allwine Hall totaled nine. One involved the theft of $1,050 worth of university microscopes, while another included the theft of $620 of personal property. An increase in thefts of 222.5 per cent was noted over last year.

The College of Business Administration and Kayser Hall were each the site of eight thefts, though CBA first opened during the 1975 spring semester. The majority of the thefts in Kayser Hall occurred in the offices or office complexes.

Five thefts were reported in the Performing Arts Building. The two largest thefts included $690 of UNO property and $1,400 of personal items.

A total of 11 thefts were reported in the other buildings across campus, totaling a known value of $733.

WHAT'S HAPPENING?

by Ward Peters

Leap Year's Coming!

BEEP-LEEP, BEEP-BEEP! This happening pertains to those people who know what LEEP stands for. If you know what LEEP means, does that mean you're a leper? Beginning Dec. 8, the Office of Financial Aids will accept LEEP applications for the spring semester of '76 with the deadline on Jan. 23. The earlier you leap the better your chances are of receiving LEEP. Call 554-2327 if you want to get leaped.

Leap's in February!

Plea number three. UNO's Black Liberators for Action on Campus is trying to get a program together for the National Black History Month, February of 1976. They want ideas, help and information from people interested in getting the show on the road. Stop over in Adm. 321 or call 554-2308 and lay it on. Tokenism will be held in scrutiny.

Abroad Leapers!

While you are playing Santa Claus this season don't forget to drop by UNO's MBSC Ballroom on Dec. 8 and 9, 9 a.m.-8 p.m., to purchase some gifts from the International Student Organization. Bring American bucks and they will give you some of their culture at no extra cost. Retail even.

Jeepers-Leapers!

On Dec. 5 and 6, the Women's Resource Center will be sponsoring the Assertiveness and Sexuality Workshop which will deal with some heavy topics for women only. The event is free to all women in the community. More details will be in the Friday paper. Stay tuned.

Holy-Roller-Leapers!

There will not be a Mass today at noon at the St. Margaret Mary's Church as previously scheduled. Instead you are all supposed to read the Bible backwards in Hebrew by next week. Father Swanson did tell me to tell you that on Dec. 8, a holyday, Mass will be held at noon at St. Margaret Mary's Church. Bring your prayers along on the special day.

Women Leapers!

Three heavy duty poets will be reading their works while a three screen colored slide presentation and musical sound-track will be in tune to their vibes on Dec. 10. Hear Richard Wyatt, Doug Marr and Marc Manganaro read their hot stuff at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Conference Center. No charge will be needed. See if you don't get a charge.

Leprosy Leapers!

Yahoo! Go tell it on the Mountain Dew! The Midwest premiere of a new Christmas opera, "Yehu," will be performed tonight at 8 p.m., in UNO's Performing Arts Recital Hall. UNO students with their ID's can see the performance for free. General admission will be $1.50. Yahweh will be watching. He's looking for a new cast.

Sad Song Leapers!

Today at noon in Allwine 308, you can view a movie which doesn't appear to be a comedy by its title. Nevertheless, you just might get off on watching "Old, Black and Alive." The flick is free and open to the public. Come see the old folks sitting on the park bench like bookends.

Icky-Ecky Leapers!

The UNO Eckankar Campus Society will be meeting in MBSC 302 on Dec. 5 at a time which was not placed on the notice which was handed to me. # Party Wrecks Hollywood

By Roger Catlin

American International Pictures, distributors of usually low-budget trash, has lately been involved with the distribution of higher budget trash.

Include in the latter category the big grossing (in the theatre as well as in the box office) "Mandingo," which gave newcomer Perry King one of his first starring roles.

King returns in a AIP release, "The Wild Party," which does to Hollywood era films like "The Day of the Locust" what "Mandingo" did to "Gone With The Wind."

King, in a peripheral role as a handsome new star, who some say imitates Valentino, lures a longtime girlfriend from fading comedian Jolly Grimm (James Coco).

The film, fully exploiting what many believe went on during those crazy Hollywood parties, is mostly about poor Mr. Grimm, who is trying to make a comeback after five years without making a movie. An aged Grimm won't listen to criticism — it's an old story.

It ends in disaster, but not the way you might expect. Reminded by lurid detail in such old Hollywood gossip books as Kenneth Anger's "Hollywood Babylon" of Fatty Arbuckle's week-long parties, one of which climaxed with the chubby comedian's undoing of a young starlet with a champagne bottle, one expects the same end for Raquel Welch by Coco here. After all, how many fat silent comedians could Jolly Grimm be patterned after?

But no, says Raquel in a TV interview about the film, and although many thought it was to be the Fatty Arbuckle saga, it actually is patterned after a Jazz Age party in Greenwich Village. The Village is a long way, geographically and ideologically, from Hollywood, so why mix the two?

For exploitation, of course! Exploitation is what movies are all about, opined executive producer Samuel Z. Arkoff in another TV interview. And we get plenty here: long, boring shots of the party, which isn't so wild, but in fact orderly. From watching a preview of Grimm's new film, to getting drunk, the partygoers then, as if on cue, all participate in a decadent orgy and all fall asleep at the same instance.

"The Wild Party" is dull and stupid and sensational as an issue of the "National Tattler," and should be seen by those who hated "The Day of the Locust" as penance.

Grimes To Return After 'Discipli Hanson's Men Nudge Wayne St. 'By Moi

By Gregg Peck
A tradition was broken last Saturday night as UNO held on for a victory over Wayne State before 2,200 spectators who braved icy roads to see the continuation of a great rivalry.

Six of the Mavericks' last eight games against the Wildcats have been decided by one point, including 61-60, 63-62 decisions last season; their latest hook-up saw UNO hold on for a two point victory, 77-75.

Wayne, a state college, and UNO, a university, said Maverick Coach Bob Hanson, is an important motive for the state school because "they're playing a supposedly much larger school and they get up for it easily; I've had Wayne players tell me this before," added Hanson.

However, the fact that Wildcat Coach Jim Seward used to be Hanson's one-time assistant at UNO, also adds excitement to Wayne-UNO basketball games.

Hanson admitted jokingly, that Seward did not come over to his house after the game and discuss old times. "It must be tough for him losing his second ball game in a row, but Jim is a competent coach, and Wayne is a well-coached team."

Detailed Coaching
Hanson cited Wayne's defense of UNO's out-of-bounds plays was characteristic of Seward's competitiveness and scrappiness as a coach.

"We have scored a lot of points on them (out-of-bounds plays) against ball clubs" whose coach might overlook such detail, the Omaha coach explained.

warded... It's A Leahy Launching...

mittance To NCC Looks Optimistic

Leahy To Lead Maverick Go-Unit In '76

By Gregg Peck

The 'major alteration' in UNO's football coaching staff, reported in a November 19 Gateway article, did turn out to be "internal" as Coach Bill Danenhauer it would.

Athletic Director Don Leahy will make a return to the coaching staff after a four-year stint as an administrator; besides his two years as athletic director on the West Dodge St. campus, he spent two years as Director of Coliseum Activities for Ak-Sar-Ben.

With Leahy assuming the offensive backfield chores, Noel Danenhauer, who coached the past two seasons, was retained as the head coach.

Leahy said in a phone interview Sunday that he and Danenhauer began to flirt with the idea (of Leahy coaching) about three weeks before the season ended. "At first," Leahy explained, "we didn't know if the idea was even possible."

The notion of an athletic director working under a head coach seems one to people who are not familiar with the sport.

However, "Coach Danenhauer gave everyone an indication of who was boss" and how the football program will be run at the coaches' meeting after the season was over; he took my first second string fullback, Mark Boyer and Sam Willcoxen, "and checked them to death."

But the move by Leahy to enter back into the coaching corps is one of two factors that could help rebound UNO football from last season's 2-9 mark; the other factor is that UNO may be part of the North Central Conference soon. Leahy said that he is "optimistic" that UNO could gain entrance into the NCC, a move he has opted for ever since he took over UNO's athletic department decision-making reins.

NCC To Visit

Leahy said he expects a visitation team, made up of athletic directors and faculty representatives appointed by the NCC, to come to the UNO campus before December 10.

Said Leahy: "They (the visitation committee) does not have to make public its findings, but if they do find a university acceptable, they will tell that university and a more formal application to the conference would then be made."

Questions

The major questions then become: "Can Leahy provide the insight and inspiration to help UNO's erratic offense?" and "Why the NCC be good for UNO athletics?"

The eight state championships at the high school level in his 17 years as Omaha Central Prep football coach speak for Leahy somewhat, however, anyone who has been associated with Leahy knows he is a disciplined, inspirational man besides possessing a knowledge of football.

His stepping into the coaching ranks can only be commended and is a logical decision. From high school coach to Ak-Sar-Ben activity director to athletic director to athletic director-coach indicate his ability to work hard, to be recognized for it, and move up in rank.

All UNO has to be concerned with is keeping him from being picked off from them.

Leahy himself answered "Why the NCC can be good for UNO athletics:

— "They have an outstanding level of competition. North Dakota University," a NCC team, "was number one in Division II going into the playoffs; we played three NCC teams this year," North Dakota State, Morningside College, and South Dakota State, "and we won two of them (NDS and Morningside)."

— "They have realistic financial ceilings as far as salaries and expenses."

— "UNO can establish traditions of playing schools in our region. I think UNO followers and players alike can get far more out of a contest against South Dakota U or Morningside than they can out of a game against Jackson State or Southern U."

Leahy unreeled this fantasy to explain his last point: "Just imagine that North Dakota University is our last home game of the season, and that they need to win in order to clinch the conference championship."

Fantasy

"And let's say that (Dan) Fulton needs a good day to hang onto his lead in the conference's reception category and that (Jim) Sledge and (Mickey) Woodside need good games to insure berths on the NCC all-conference team. It would shed a completely different light on the situation and, I think, make for healthier viewing for the spectator and prove more enticing for the player to go at in the form of individual honors."

"It's very hard to be independent as we have been for the last two years," said Leahy.

So, considering that Leahy provides the inspiration to the coaching staff as well as the players, a good recruiting year would not hurt the young Mavericks.

Turn After 'Disciplinary Action'

Men Nudge Seward's St. 'By More Than 1'

On the prior night's contest: "I was very pleased with their play in the second half; actually, the only breakdown we had in the whole game was in the last six minutes of the first half," when the Mavericks turned the ball over several times, and the Wildcats outscored them 14-2. The halftime score saw UNO down by a bucket.

"We could have blown them out earlier if we would have been more patient with our press," said Hanson.

Sophomore Terry Keehan was pressed into a starter's role, after Hanson benched the Mav's primary ball handler Leo Grimes for what he termed "disciplinary action," and Keehan responded with 11 points although Grimes' quickness was missed.

'Had To Do It'

"Leo went home for the (Thanksgiving) holidays and failed to make it back in time for practice," Hanson said; "it was hard for me to bench him, and it was hard for Leo, too. It was just something that, as a coach, I had to do," explained Hanson.

"Leo has a great attitude and has accepted it well," added Hanson, "and he will start the Morningside game."

Hanson said that freshman pivot Glen Moberg played better than he did in their first although "he did get into a little foul trouble. Nate (McMorris) also played well in the second half," cited Hanson.

However the bright spots in the lineup were Dennis Forrest and Bob Grems. Grems played "steady" said Hanson, "and Forrest not only had a good game scoring-wise," noted Hanson, "but he was our main ball handler and had 14 assists, which may be a school record."

Special 'Thumbtax' Might Be A Pain And A Cure

By John McNamara

One thing for sure about a fiscal crunch, everyone seems to be able to afford one. It's non-discriminatory, it hits the rich, the poor, the Jew, the gentile, the black, the white, and the unaware.

Even government with its beauracratism is not immune from its creeping tendrils. Those tendrils have crept down the reaches of Nebraska state structure until they now grip the University of Nebraska by the proverbial balls. Colleges stand on shakey accreditation grounds, the student center is drowning in its own red operations, and prices just seem to keep climbing.

The strange thing is that when it comes time to raise some more capital, some more green bucks to keep the classrooms filled with students, furniture and heat, the brunt of the attack falls on those least able to shoulder it: the students. The Who's Who of affluent students at UNO is more scarce than the World War Two Book of Italian War Heroes. You have to just sit back and ask yourself . . . where in the hell am I gonna come up with that money? Why can't they get it from somebody else?

Ah yes, why can't they get it from somebody else . . . everybody else seems to think the same way. Let somebody else pay the goddam fees. I agree.

Pay attention kiddies, this will be on the test. The beauracratism failed to keep the dreaded economy from scathing the University, it should pay for its inept performance. So I propose a special tax, a tax on administrators and their lackeys. And we'll call it the . . . thumbtax.

Thumbtax? Hell yes, the thumbtax. The state legislature would set up a special rate for University officials to follow. It would be a time and length scale. Watch how it works . . . for every minute that an administrator sits with his thumb up his ass, times the length of his thumb times its width and depth he pays a certain standard rate.

Now I realize there are bound to be complications arising, administrators taking sick leave for hang nails, inefficiency from administrators using but one hand . . . the possibilities are endless.

Specific applications . . . with the present administration, we should have raised enough capital from the thumbtax to not only bail out the student center, but construct a ten-story addition to Milo Bail's building, relocate Elmwood Park in Mrs. Batt's backyard, build a ten-story parking garage and car wash behind the Administration Building, provide free tuition and supplies for all the students at the University, and throw a beer bash for every graduate assistant on campus. Instead we stand with our asses bared to the rising tide of inflation.

And then there is the Board of Regents . . . good God! Can you just see the possibilities! F. Lee Bailey could be hired as corporate lawyer for the Big Red Company. The entire Lincoln football team could get an NFL franchise, the national networks would be clammering at Bob Devaney's door for TV rights to the Huskers' seasonal games. That group of scruffy gorillas could get paid for their efforts, they would put Lincoln on the map and get it off our backs. With Big Red making money (not to mention all the thumbtax revenue for the time regents spent dealing with Devaney), UNO would get the money it deserves. Parity would become a dead issue (sorry Clint, you'll have to find something else to dabble in now).

A national trend could develop, schools, legislatures, governments all over the country would adopt this method. Just think of it, government employees all around the nation would have to start paying for all the time they wasted tax dollars sitting with their thumbs up their asses. My God!

But wait . . . I think I see a flaw in my otherwise perfect plan. These primadonnas may not want to pay through the ass as it were. They might try to avoid the tax, exemptions for various reasons would be created. One administrator would claim a deduction for the time he had to wait on another administrator who had to wait on still another administrator to pass on the work. The complications that could arise.

All these things would have to be taken into consideration when the legislation was drawn. It would be one tricky piece of law, but I'm sure Ernie Chambers could get into the job with relish.

There is of course the possibility, far-fetched I admit, but nonetheless still possible, that some of the ivory tower residents would actually be disgusted with the idea. They might even go so far as to stop sitting on their thumbs. They might react quite violently, throwing papers and such around (a vague resemblance to bureaucratic work) and actually earning their money. A reverse strike of sorts.

You can see the implications, a balanced book for Milo Bail (sans ten-story addition), no hike in student fees (sans free tuition and supplies), and those poor graduate assistants would still have to pay for their own

Ravine Plan To Move Forward

save a park. The ravine is not a no-use area; it's a low-use area. There's trails and wildlife down there."

Omaha Parks and Recreation Director George Shafer said he was "quite concerned about the legislature setting a precedent that would allow governmental bodies to take park land. If they do it here, they can do it in Scottsbluff, Hastings, and any other part of the state."

Referring to a state Environmental Department report showing evidence of raw sewage in the Elmwood ravine creek, Shafer said he had taken a sample of water and found "that the water running in that creek is clearer than that in Carter Lake."

Engbretson, also at the meeting, said the difference in the two reports was due "to the fact that the raw sewage is not constant in the creek. It's concentrated in there (the creek) one or two times a day, or three or four times a week."

Engbretson said that under the university's parking plan, calling for "eight acres of concrete" in the 21-acre ravine, "no more than 300-350 cars could be seen from any vantage point." According to Engbretson, the plan would provide 1,100 parking spaces at a cost of $1.7 million.

Councilman John Hlavacek said he opposed the "university taking any more residential land, because it decreases (the city's) tax base." He suggested the university "spend that money to move one of its schools downtown."

The vote for Abbott's resolution against UNO's ravine parking plan was:

Aye: Abbott, Cunningham, Hlavacek, Miller, Rosenblatt
No: Hassett, Taylor

beer bashes. But the improvements... we'd still set a national trend, efficient and orderly administration, minimal waste of time and energy, a real smooth organization, running with oiled wheels like a swiss watch.

The way I see it, we can't lose either way. With the thumbtax we stand to gain a helluva lot, without we can only look forward to more gripping by the creeping fiscal crunch.

Bellows said the committee will investigate the present use of student fees and will also "take a historical look." He said the committee will "make some major comparisons."

Bellows said he hopes the study will be "meaningful in terms of parity" and "will get the regents and the legislature to think about it."

INGMAR BERGMAN'S

Second in his trilogy on faith, WINTER LIGHT springs from Bergman's explicit desire to define man's relation to God — if He exists. A village pastor, empty of faith and desperately unloved, reveals his bitter failure to offer spiritual consolation to his flock. Somberly poignant, the film sketches a world of half empty churches but not entirely without a hope in God's universe.
